

In response, the board voted to have a new contract with Brofft from July 2018 to June 2021. If Brofft remains in her position until June 2021, she will receive a $60,000 bonus.

If she were to leave before that date, the board would provide a severance payment at the end of the term or 12 months' salary, whichever is less.

The contract may be viewed on the district website under Board of Education, meetings, boarddocs.com.

Safety and Security update

Wangeman said the board has received a compilation of the votes cast at D-38 Deliberates regarding priorities among those attending. The priorities were the hiring of counselors, then installation of security vestibules, followed by security dogs and cameras.

Brofft stressed that the counselors referred to are social work counselors rather than academic counselors.

Among the safety features requested are 12 counselors (no funds available), additional armed security personnel (one in each elementary, middle and high school), and gun-sniffing dogs. Because these items are recurring costs rather than capital investments, a mill levy override (MLO) would be required to fund them. The total cost would be $1.119 million.

Other safety-related items discussed during the meeting included the Safe 2 Tell program, which allows individuals to anonymously report concerns. In this program, each call is answered by an individual and immediately reported to the Sheriff's Office. In its most current form, the program also allows texts and photos to be transmitted. Susan Payne, founder of the program, said that there was a large spike in reporting following the Florida school shooting as people realized how important it is to report suspicions.

Assistant Principal Bridget O'Connor of Lewis-Palmer High School gave a demonstration of student interactions as part of the Sources of Strength program, encouraging mutual support among students and urging them to reach out to all segments of the student body. For further details on the program, please see the District Accountability Advisory Committee article in the March issue at <http://www.ocn.me/v18n3.htm#daac>.
