Designer for new school approved

Taylor, as board liaison to the facilities planning process, reported on the number of additional student seats needed. The middle school is at capacity. When Monument Academy expands in 2020, that would free some capacity.

The board voted to confirm CRP Architects as the designer for a new school in Jackson Creek. The firm, one of seven considered, thinks it may be possible to have such a school ready for occupancy in fall 2019. Taylor said the district must consider costs and timelines for the school, recognizing that the longer the district waits to build it, the more expensive it will be.

A cost summary for the new school totals $30.54 million. The design advisory leadership for the new school would be Bear Creek Elementary Principal Peggy Parsley and Lewis-Palmer Middle School Prin-
